Content of the lecture

Jurisprudence or legal science is a specialized branch of knowledge in the field of social science. Social science is a science about society in general. Jurisprudence is a system of knowledge in the field of law and state. The term “Legal science” is identical to the term “jurisprudence.”

It originated in ancient Rome at the end of the IV - in the beginning of the III century B.C. (Latin jurisprudentia is knowledge of law) and is now used in the meanings:

- science about law and state (theoretical activities in the field of law);
- professional practice of a lawyer (judge, prosecutor, investigator, notary, etc.).

Jurisprudence is a system of knowledge about objective properties of law and state in their conceptual-legal understanding and expression, about general and separate regularities of their origin, development and functioning in their structural variety.
